Reproductive health care, including access to birth control and safe and legal abortion care, is an essential part of health and well-being. While Roe v. Wade was overturned, abortion remains legal in many states, and other reproductive health care services remain protected by law. Abortion remains legal in Iowa up until the time at which cardiac activity can be detected, which typically occurs around six weeks of pregnancy.

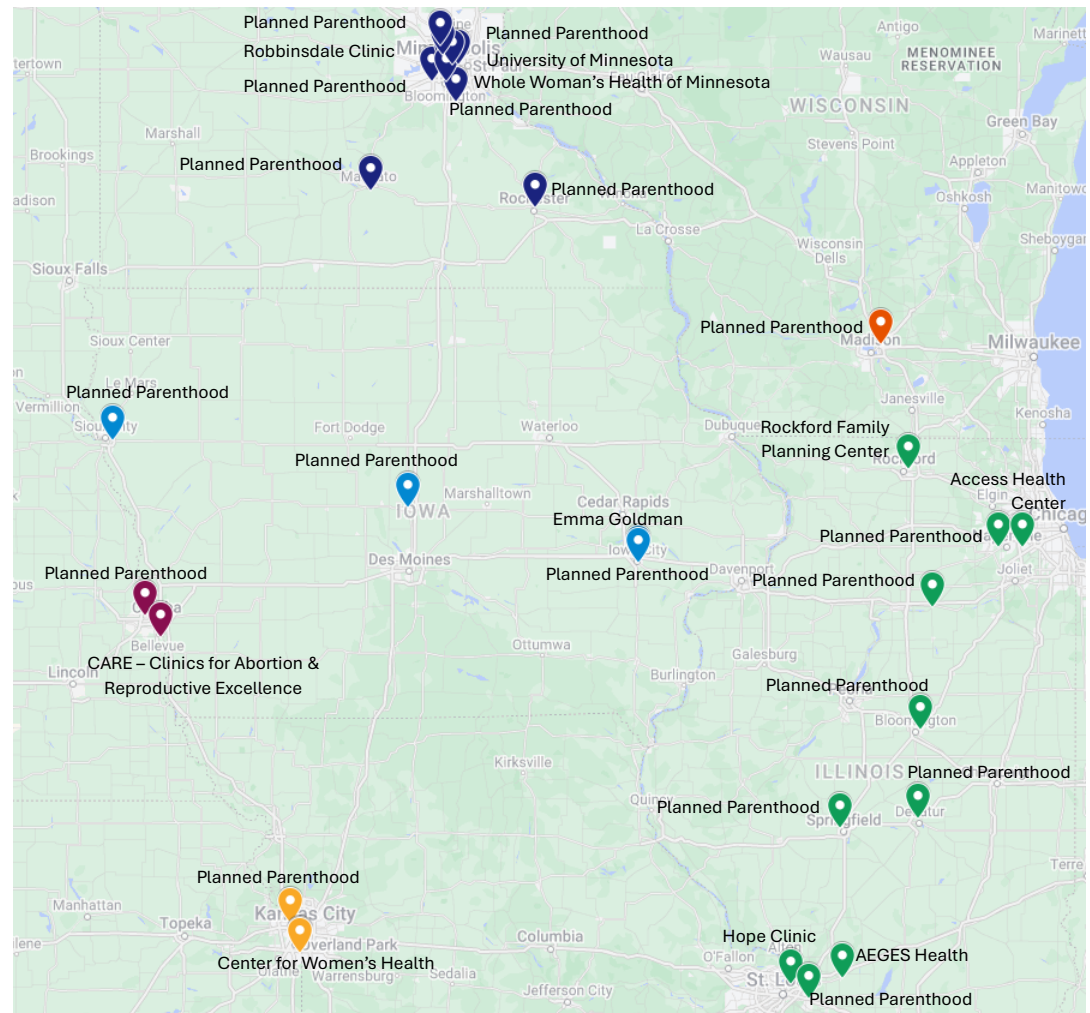

Iowa also requires clients to go to a state-directed information appointment in person, wait for 24 hours, and then go back for another appointment for an abortion. This means clients must make at least two trips to the health center. For more on your rights and legal protections, visit reproductiverights.gov/.
